series 1, number 28...my, my, this does seem to be an elite typer, doesn't it?

1966 AP

There have been any number of replacements in this game. First of all, Steve Henderson notified me that he had lost interest in playing Postal Diplomacy. Then, I lost track of Ernie Carrillo, who is now somewhere in Marin County. Finally, Red Vance requested that I replace him in his position. HELP!!!

It would not be fitting that the game proceed without players for 3 of the 5 Powers on the board. Therefore, the following disposition has been made:

RUSSIA will be played by JAMES JUSTIN DAGLEY, 2096 Blackwood Dr. Walnut Creek, Calif 94596

FRANCE will be played by CHRISTINA BRANNAN, 3044 Shattuck, Berkeley, Calif.

ENGLAND will be played by CLYDE JOHNSON, 2066 Monument Blvd, Oakland, Calif.

So, in the meantime, here is a press note in the game.

FROM THE NEWSDESK OF RADIO ROMANY, ABOARD THE GYPSIE FLEET:

Discovery of a rare edition of the Diabolicon, famed volume to which the separately printed Neonomenclon forms an errata sheet, has dominated the headlines since its unearthing over E-vining at a subterranean construction site nine miles below the floor of the Vesuvian crater. Bound in weather-resistant, saggeral and printed on 18" x 27" sheets of preemanticated polystyrene with hydrogen-aided ink, this book is a major archaeological and military find. The edition has been kept under strict security guard by Press and Public Relations Minister Louis Sade (The former Dowdell-Alfonse-Francois), an action which has come under mild rebuke from Emperor Uthman I. Such careful precautions have been taken that the emperor himself has been unable to view the book as yet and intimates doubt that he will in the near future. Unreliable sources indicate that the reason for the emperor's reticence in pursuing the matter center around the recovery of the Heart of Ahriman, now residing in Minister Sade's world-famous collection of archeological curiosities.

A noted devotee of historical treasures, the press lord has only recently terminated an enthusiastically received one-man showing of his major items, including the Heart and the recently recovered Amulet of Life. Experts estimate that the only comparable collection in existence is that of Gypsy Fleet commander Count Vladimir, whose ring, crown and sword were recently seen in the news at a major world trade conference.

Meanwhile, Algonquin Semites fleeing persecution have applied for protection by the Turko-Roman government on the basis of Imperial Ordinance 9357.64 (subsection D12, paragraph 78) authorizing agents of the emperor to extend the full legal and military jurisdiction over "all persons, places, substances, representations, likenesses, and things of potential concern to the possible security and well-being of the state in whole or part, as may be determined by due analysis permitted to said agents of the Highest by the exigencies of the situation, as proper consideration and evaluation of the time and place factors affecting said condition may or may not tend to indicate."

While such consideration is being rendered by the third apprentices sub-clerk of the Imperial Bath Appliance Store, all Algonquin Semites involved have been executed in effigy for "the high crime and infamous crime of wilfully and/or maliciously misrepresenting, defaming, degrading or tending to misrepresent, defame, or degrade, or

OF THE SUPREME ANARCH

WARSAW-The Supreme Anarch spoke today before ten thousand screaming Poles at the first annual convention of the Polish Freedom Party. The Anarch spoke of importing Cavourite from another universe to use as a weapon to free the oppressed peoples of the World. He ended his speech with the rousing cry to revolution: Turn on; Tune in; Take over!

The Supreme Anarch was about to step down from the rostrum, when the Russian Imperial Army for the Occupation of Poland burst into the convention hall.

"This whole meeting", the Supreme Anarch proclaimed, "is a figment of my imagination and, for that matter, so is my presence in Warsaw!"

The army found itself in a vacant, deserted, city lot...

The Gypsy Fleet in this case was named as the injured party, stemming from a bulliten appearing in the Neapoliten Sanitary Engineers Gazette concerning an article in the New Scatology Review based on a footnote printed in the obscenity section of the Sodomite Examiner-Republican with reference to news received from Miskatonic University, a collegiate sports quarterly...

Immediately upon receipt of the information of the previously-mentioned individual's legal demise, the Public Youth Service acted to conscript the party, including reputed Empress Luorezia o Trans-Caucasian Guinea and Reunified Viseeraa. The induction order was personally given by Director Juliette de Lorsche, recently awarded the Purple Crescent and Cross with Gadolinium Oak Leaves and Everflowing Cornucopia for her unstinting activities in servicing the youth of the Empire. The action, according to official sources, was in response to rumors of attack by an unknown number of 20-mm infantry troops under the alleged command of American Secretary of War, Anthony Wayne. A formal protest has meanwhile been filed with United States First Autocrat Burr by the Ministry of State on behalf of the U.S. Army Artillery corps.....

ANKARA (20 March 1901): It was revealed today that the Air Force General, now known as Pope Innocent XIV, was exiled, not because he failed to rectify, but because he failed to identify the conditions to be found at TUSLOG DET. 183...

PARIS (15 August 1901): His Majesty, Henry IX, True King of England, today appointed as his Prime Minister Dr. Arthur Conan Moriarty, well-known English businessman and amateur detective (and close friend of the Empress of France). Dr. Moriarty is known throughout the world as the solver of many weird and strange mysteries. His most recent exploit was the arrest of the famous Spanish burglar, the Basque of the Houndervilles. Dr Moriarty is also credited with the capture of the notorious criminal, Sherlock Holmes and his nefarious wife/partner Dr Irene Watson. Dr. Moriarty pledged to work for the restoration of the legitimate monarch of England and for the complete and ultimate destruction of the heretical C. of E.

BUDAPEST (5 September 1901): Prime Minister Hary (the VI Viper) Janos today announced that the Kingdom of Hungary would continue to be a faithful adherent of the True Church under Pope Innocent XIV. Said he of the Archbishop of Santerbury: "He ought to be hanged in the lurch, for the cold-blooded murder of the English Church".

PARIS (12 September 1901) Well France was ablaze with light and gaiety today as the French Empire celebrated the 200th anniversary of the enlightened rule of the Borgia Dynasty. Her Imperial Majesty Lucrezia III, 10th ruler of her line, was, as always, the life of the party. Prominently displayed throughout the capitol was the Borgia coat of arms (~~quaterly~~ quaterly a ~~poison~~ poison bottle of poison, sable; a earacen dagger, argent; a clawed grasping hand, vert; a right handed screw, or; the whole surmounted by a ~~assaracen~~ assaracen blade, argent; and beneath, the motto, Procreante Dumes...) Ecstastic guests eagerly compared the festivities to the glorious celebration ~~which~~ which accompanied Her Majesty's accession to the throne in 1893, after the untimely and unfortunate demise of Her brother, Emperor Cesar II. At last count, Her Majesty is credited with 478 private audiences in the past two days. It is understood that Her Majesty has cabled the false English Queen, Victoria, "Can You Top This?"

LONDON (14 September 1901): ~~Strongly~~ Her Majesty Queen Victoria, in response to a scurrilous note from Lucrezia III of France, today replied, "You bet I can," and proceeded to hold a private audience with all the members of ~~the~~ Parliament, the Coldstream Guards, and every Mad Satirical Monk within reach. Commented the Earl of Myskatonia, "Somehow, I don't think Her Majesty had quite the right idea. We had tea and talked. Of course, Her Majesty lacks certain attributed commonly associated with Emperess Lucrezia, so perhaps it was just as well."

ANKARA (22 March 1967): Dammit, stop spelling Her Majesty as "her majesty"!!!!

DEBROEN (15 March September, 1901): Strange reports are reaching this city of a wild animal raising the nearby ~~mountain~~ forest. Peasants refer to tales of long age, when discussing these ~~mountain~~ in local taverns. Could it be that the Original Hungarian Driths has returned? (Maybe he's writing this press release!!) (Or maybe a Paleologist-Peasant?)

SZEKESFENARVAR (17 September 1901): At his summer home here, Dr. Nagy Sandor, noted authority on the derivation of names and the world's most famous etymologist, announced the publication of his new book by the Hungarian State Press. The Book, entitled What's in a Name?, dispells many heretofore popularly held notions concerning the derivation of family names. For instance, the name 'Bailey', once thought to be English (derived from ba il, to release fr from prison upon payment of bond), is now shown to be no more than the Celtic equivalent of the Hungarian Bela. Such rare names as Dygert are now known to be of even more ancient origin, the specific example being derived from the ancient Hungarian (extremely) minor goddess god Tygart, a deity worshipped during the years 7102-7101 B.C. to promote the fertility of small (under 1/8 hectare) cabbage fields. Considerable evidence is brought forth in this scholarly and erudite work to bolster the author's theory concerning the Assyrian origin of the name Turner, thought in the past to be English and, more recently, Hungarian. Traditional thought had held its derivation to be directly from turner, a woodworker. However, later work indicated a German influence from turner, one who is imprisoned in a tower. The crowning touch occurred when the noted Dr. Nagy proved that this variant was a German corruption from the Hungarian tur, the word for cottage cheese. However, a great question was put forth by Dr. Ashur-bel-rishi of Assyria concerning the possible Assyrian derivation, citing it as his evidence that tur is a common term in both ancient and middle Assyrian, its most common meaning being "a type of clay used for wrapping garbage" (there were no WASHING MACHINES in those days).

PS--Note to Anders--Lt Simon takes full and complete credit for all Hungarian press releases except for Budapest domlines, which are mine

PFS-- Another note to you, Anders--If you dare show these releases to Turner, Bailey and/or Dygert, this time, so they can print answers the same issue, expect to find your name in our etymological discussion. I want them to be suprised. OK? (HAPPY NEW YEAR, too. I notice you have no compunctions to answering Bailey in Brewhon, fella. Also, if I don't show these clods the advance releases, I can expect to get no material whatsoever from them. However, I have enough problems without being drithed to death by a bunch of mangy Hungarians (oops!), so maybe I'll keep this a suprise. Is it fair, I ask you, though, that the GAMESMASTER be threatened by the PLAYERS?!!)

PPPS--Most Hungarian derivatives of words are accurate, although the names, of course, may not be. For example, tur does mean cottage cheese.

HATVAN (25 September 1901): At the Hatvan Academy of Etymological Research and Constructive Chaos, the members in council announced to the press today that Hungary does but seek her own in reclaiming the territory of Venice. The town was founded in 712 B.C. by a band of itinerant Hungarian nightclub entertainers (specializing in the garden). The band leader was foretold in a dream that settling and founding a town at a place where he would find a raven sitting on a hanging bush eating a worm, who was coiled around a 50-cent piece, would be a good idea. Such was accomplished. The raven was and the town was named "Otyenoch", in honor of the worm. In time, the Oty was dropped, and the town was known as "Vasenyoch", which the barbarian, ignorant Italians corrupted into "Vandisia" or "Venice". The worm, as it happens, was named for the Hungarian God, and given a Roman forename. He is famous in Hungarian history as "the worm, J. Justiniah Tsigort".

ESZTERDOM (1 October 1901): At the summer palace, located in the most ancient capital of the Hungarian people, His Most Divine King and Imperial Majesty Arpad II, today ascended the throne, continuing the magnificent and illustrious Hungary Dynasty. The French ambassador, Prince Bella Borgia, nephew of Her Majesty Lucretia III, presented His Majesty with a princely gift from the Empress of the French: a brace of female German slaves. Emperor Arpad was so impressed that he immediately expostulated the ancient Hungarian spell, "A bér igen yél van!" at which the sun went out. This condition of blindness and mass hysteria existed for some eight minutes, after which His Divine Majesty again intoned the spell, restoring light. The gifts were in a state of submission. He then expressed His gratitude and felicitations to His beloved cousin, Empress Lucretia. After felicitations had been concluded, the performance was repeated for the benefit of New West Coast viewers.

PARIS (3 October 1901): ~~Emperess~~ for some reason, Empress Lucretia III has suddenly decided to visit Hungary.

BUDAPEST (5 October 1901): Students of the University of Budapest today picketed Parliament to demand that they be drafted for the war against the vile Germans. They carried signs reading "Hurt the Hun for Hungary" and "Humble the Hun for Hary". Some, having been promised that they would be able to raid the famous German wine cellars for cherry brandy, cried "Will you kill for Kirchwasser?" The archbishop of Budapest exhorted the demonstrators, saying, "Well, you know."

BUDAPEST (31 October, 1901): Her Imperial Majesty, Lucretia III of France, today held Her birthday party in the chief city of the Hungarian Kingdom. Having arrived in Budapest 1. st week, She has been constantly in... a h... conference with Arpad II, who whom she pronounced "divine". The party exceeded all expectations, being attended by King Henry IX of England, Pope Innocent XIV, Tsar Nicholas Noah II of Russia, and Mr Hary (the Viper) Janos, Prime Minister of Hungary. In a private interview with selected members of the press, Her Majesty stated that she was satisfied, very, with the care that her gifts to Emperor Arpad were receiving. "He exercises them every night," she observed. "In fact," she said, "I've gotten a lot of exercise here, too." Then after a pause, "Well, you know; tennis, swimming, uh..." Uh-huh, we know.

FINIS

LONDON (12 September 1901): Archbishop Bailey of Canterbury today leveled another blast at Roman Catholicism. "Those Romish heretics not only have that audacity to call themselves 'Catholic,' but are now demonstrating the folly of their charges of disunity (directed at non-Romish churches) as well. Well, Mother Church, tell us who the REAL Pope is! Who speaks for the Church and God? (Or was it God and Church?)" The archbishop concluded that the current Franco-Italian war proves that "they are not Christian Nations. Everyone knows that Christian nations would never fight among themselves, no now, would they? Return to the Wisdom of the True and Only Catholic Church (!sic!!) O Sinful French and Italians!"

LONDON (13 September 1901): The Chamber of Commerce is having its "pilgrims Guide to London" translated into French and Italian. It is hoped that both Pope Urban IX and Antipope Wholan't XIV will come to kiss the feet of Archbishop Bailey.

LONDON(31 October 1901): The Imperial Briths of Europe today convened in plenary session here. Official delegates from all nations were present, including the governments-in-exile of France, Russia, And the Austrian Empire., as well as the legitimate governments of Rumania, Serbia, and Spain. Speaker after speaker arose to denounce the blatant aggression of the MM. When asked the Mad Satirical Monk(British Prime Minister) was asked what was wrong with MM aggression, he replied:"Obviously this aggression by the MM limits our own opportunities for national expansion, cultural diffusion, and highway beautification. In short, the trouble with MM expansion is th that it is not LTA expansion." Countless emigre nobles from the MM powers attended the sessions of the Imperial Briths, and many told of the horrors of Revolution currently being spread by the sinister MM. The general cry was for a return to "legitimacy." When asked what he meant by "legitimacy" the Duc de Bourgogne replied: "In the case of Lucretia, take your pick of meanings..."

LONDON(31 October 1901): It was revealed today that Antipope Whosen't XIV owns controlling interest in every munitions firm in France. He has also formed a corporation called Indulgences, Unltd. The salesmen for this firm reportedly do a great deal of business with mothers of French soldiers.

LONDON(5 November 1901): Captain Rohdevestvensky Walkoff of the Russian fleet has defected along with the crew of his craft the "East Wind". Walkoff gave his reason for deserting:"Well, etymological research is all right, but when they were about to research MY name, I decided to leave..."

LONDON(10 November, 1901): My, my, my! What will Medical science come up with next! Bordschabiazgen even!

Brian Bailey and I have been developing an interesting modern-period war-game.

It is impossible to simulate modern warfare without relating the tactical action to some sort of Grand Strategic process. Therefore, what was intended to be a wargame in the early World War II period has become a game of Space War.

Consider: The strategic basis of World War II was inevitably bound up with economics, with the races to produce overwhelming quantities of war material and such. The only reason that Germany was defeated as soon as it was is that aviation fuel supplies were fatally disrupted in late 1943 and early 1944. To model the complexities of a modern economy would require too much practical work.

Therefore, we stage our armed conflict on a 'planet' with a surface similar enough to that of the Earth that we may use the same maps as are produced by modern cartographers to determine the geographical situation of our forces. All war material is supplied from outer space at 33 'drop zones' located around and about the midball. Lord Lagging Gas, the local Interstellar Bigwig has decreed that none but early WWII materials may be used outside of the drop zones on the surface of the planet. The weapons are used by cardboard soldiers represented by other pieces of cardboard pushed about on mapboards. MY units are benefitted by that great technological development-Waterproof India Ink, which should lead to greater victories, etc....

Swenson: Well, things should be interesting, now that Bjo Trimble, the world famous BNF and Diplomacy-hater has moved to the Bay Area!

Bailey: That's odd, I've never heard of her...

STAB A DIPLOMACY HATER IN THE BACK!!! STAB A DIPLOMACY HATER IN THE BACK!!! STAB A DIPLOMACY HATER IN THE BACK!!!

I really wonder how long it will last that Diplomacy fandom ^{may} continue without the petty bickering and politicking that seems to characterize mainstream STF fandom. Really, the only large-scale feud we've had is between a pair of S.F. Fan-types who undoubtedly have had the habit for some while... Oh well, I should get busy and publish some more moves for my games... That's all the readers of the UNIVERSIT Y have in mind, anyhow, getting on with the progress of the games...

The brackets indicate the location of the unit in question. /A/ indicates that the unit is OFF THE BOARD, and probably about to attack the gamesmaster. HELP!

I can't decide whether to start to type out Rod Walker's press releases or to try to fill up the page with other material.

PLUS LA CHANGE, PLUS LA MEME CHOSE... (ye lettercol)

Rod Walker (TUSLOG DET 183, APO NEW YORK, NEW YORK,) Enclosed is a copy of the map/rules for my new variant, Imperialism IX. It is now my policy to send copies of the maps/rules for all new variants to all Gamesmasters with whom I trade 'zines. This also applies retroactively to my other variants, if you're interested.

I would appreciate it very much if you could give my new game a mention in MISKATONIC U. Thanks.

Imperialism IX turns out to be a Diplomacy-type game based upon the wars fought between Athens, Sparta, and the Persians 'way back when. It looks ~~amazingly~~ ^{very} interesting; the main interest seems to be the contrast between the myriad small Greek states, and Great Henge Persia, which has double armies and fleets! Sort of Gondor v. the World...

Another worthy game is Rod Walker's Feudalism, with room for 50 players. With all this room, of course, there is a bit of time to wait before the list is filled--time enough for you, all three of my readers not gamesmastering 25,000 Postal games a week, to sign up!!

Well, watch out- Read Granstark, Armageddonia, or Erewhon: We have been Given the Word that that stalwart of clean writing and good taste, Charlie Turner, is at us again. Be careful, Charlie, or I'll tell my reading audience, composed entirely of Gamesmasters and Completists, that you're starting a new 'zine called Lebensraum that will have a circulation of only 7 copies! And then, the fan will blow! You'll be so bedgered by John, John, and John, not to mention Don, that you'll have to print an issue...

THE RULES THE RULES THE RULES THE RULES THE RULES THE RULES THE RULES THE RULES

1) Koning's Rule, Welle's Extension thereof, and the negative sense of Boardman's Rule are all practiced in the games in MISKATONIC UNIVERSITY. Thus, a dislodging attack from the front cuts support in all cases, and negates any effect the unit may have had around the rest of the board. As many readers are aware, I do not favor the picture of the Diplomacy rules as a chess-like structure, where champions of logic and Boolean algebra alone may grasp an intuitive knowledge of the game. These revisions are found by many gamesmasters, even, to be apparently more 'natural', even if they do not conform 100% to the book of rules. So ~~small~~ The Author of the Rule Book doesn't conform to it either, it's such a Holy Relic...

More discussions, in a similar fair, nonpartisan, unbiased, scholarly style, later. Yes, MISKATONIC UNIVERSITY indeed follows only the latest, most common uses of English phrase....!

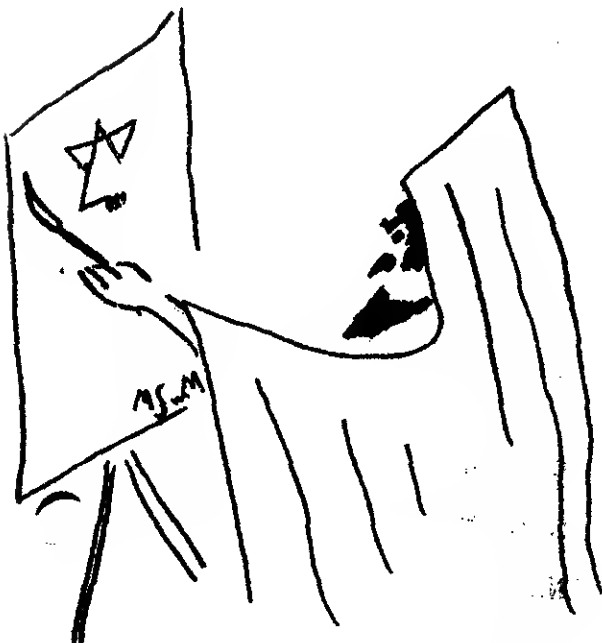

Read XENOGGIC, published by Larry Peery (In Hungarian, that's L*A*R*R*Y P*E*E*R*Y, I suppose)

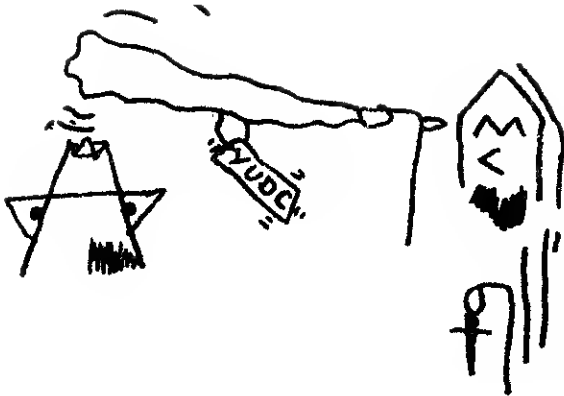

Estelle St. San Diego, Calif.

I honestly don't know why I bother to print such nonsense, as my wider audience consists exclusively of other Gamesmasters, whom all know what's happening, anyway.....

The Mad Satirical Monk...
Forging Big Brother!

Hmm...Does anybody really believe that there is a true-blue, constitutional Lafayette Tactics Association?

The original LTA was an association of High School wargamers. Presently, there is no activity of the LTA in an official sense, although ARMAGEDDONIA is claimed to be published in the spirit of the LTA; this means that there is an hour-long ceremonial argument before any business is conducted, a traditional LTA custom.

Actually, the LTA (Dan Brannan translates this to 'Little Tyrents' Association'), never was successful in organizing a true geopolitical game, as it was intended to do. A true geopolitical game, which we have constructed theoretically on many occasions, is just too complicated to play while living a normal life including any other activities, such as working, or attending school. We had fun, though...

The last-elected ^{chairman} of the LTA, Jack Perella, comments on a recent long Dippy 'zine: "The journal of the Calvin Coolidge Fan Club might profitably be named after a useless organ—such as the Gall Bladder..."

another

Lord LaughingGas is the arbitrary force behind a more successful enterprise—a nontrue geopolitical wargame. This means that all of the gross simplifications we have made are 'justified' by the statement that such is the case by the ruling of Lord LaughingGas, who has set up the battle for his amusement.

The LTA challenges the world to a pres. release feude in Graustark 1968AA. Poor Boardman is already swamped by our verbage, so what difference could 20 or 30 more pages of material possibly make?

Speaking of OOHATE, is the man attempting to satirize the LTA? He mentions the famous Schimmelpinnick Cigars Dygert fuses, but I don't recognise anything else in the series. We don't play that much across the board Diplomacy here—we can't stand Dygert's cigar nerve gas long enough to get far beyond 1902—for that matter, we can't stand each other so long, either...
